Hindi makapaniwala si Jessica na itinali ng papa niya ang kanyang mamanahin sa taong minsan ay nanloko sa kanya. "Hindi ko alam kung paano mo nakuha ang tiwala ng Papa, Nick!" buong pait niyang sabi. "I cannot imagine that he trusted you that much!" nanunuyang dugtong niya. Sa nanunuyang tinig din ay sumagot ang lalaki. "At hindi lang ang asyenda ang ipinagkatiwala niya sa akin! Maging ang kaisa-isa niyang anak!" Natigilan si Jessica sa narinig. Bakit ngayong nalaman niyang hindi pabor si Nick sa ginawa ng papa niya ay hindi siya nakaimik? Ano ba ang inaasahan niyang isasagot nito? Love Trap "Sign this prenuptial agreement, Serena... Walang dahilan para mahirapan tayong pareho sa sandaling ipa-annul ko ang kasal na ito. Hindi natin kailangang maghabol sa ari-arian ng bawat isa sa atin." Kaya walang dahilan para tumanggi si Serena sa suhestiyon ng lalaki na magkunwari silang magkasintahan upang mapaligaya ang mga huling araw ng buhay ng matanda. Mula sa inosenteng pagkukunwari, natagpuan ni Serena ang sariling taglay na ang pangalan ni Robb nang magpakasal sila—kasal na tiniyak ni Robb na ipaa-annul nito sa sandaling matapos na ang silbi niyon. At ano ang gagawin niya ngayong dinala ni Robb sa bahay nila ang isang babae sa katauhan ni Yvette?

Intimate Mobilities Oct 08 2021 As globalization and transnational encounters intensify, people's mobility is increasingly conditioned by intimacy, ranging from love, desire, and sexual liaisons to broader family, kinship, and conjugal matters. This book explores the entanglement of mobility and intimacy in various configurations throughout the world. It argues that rather than being distinct and unrelated phenomena, intimacy-related mobilities constitute variations of cross-border movements shaped by and deeply entwined with issues of gender, kinship, race, and sexuality, as well as local and global powers and border restrictions in a disparate world.

Kristine Series 48: The Warrior: Brad Santa de Leones (Part 3) May 23 2020 "I have never been in love, Cam. So I don't really know if what I feel for you is love." She tensed but she persevered. It was her life, her happiness that was on a stake. "So okay. Analisahin natin kung ano iyang nararamdaman mo para sa akin. Lets start it with you getting a hard on every time I am near. So, what's next?" May kalituhang nagdaan sa mga mata nito. Then he brought her hand to his lips. "I have dreamed of you always since I first saw you. I want to see your face next to my pillow each and every morning, I want to laugh with you, cry with you, grow old with. I have this age-old feeling on wanting to protect you, and-" Tinakpan niya ang bibig nito ng mga daliri niya. "That's enough for now" Her smile was wide. She felt like jumping into the bed of this stupid man and hug him and kiss him until he saw sense. Then she wrinkled her nose. "Maybe you don't love me enough, Brad. But don't worry.." She shrugged, grinning silly, "we can work it out. Baka madagdagan pa yang mga sinasabi mo. I'll keep a list. So. Lets marry and live one day at a time."

Another Mother Jan 19 2020 One night after midnight social workers brought a baby girl to the author's home, and her life as a foster mother began. A social worker herself, Gerstenzang discovered that raising Cecilia, despite all the personal joys, would be a complex and frustrating process of "co-parenting" with the foster care system in New York City. Foster parents are in great demand, but they are not necessarily treated well. We follow the author through the home visits, the Early Intervention evaluation, the WIC program that (with much bureaucratic hassle) provides free formula and cereal, and the mandatory parenting training sessions. She comments, "When Michael and I became foster parents, we learned how stigmatizing, demoralizing, and just plain inconvenient and time-consuming being part of the 'unentitled' population can be. With the exception of Early Intervention, we often felt that the programs were more concerned with regulating our behavior than with providing services." Regular meetings with the birth family were also part of the process. Not only were they awkward for all concerned, but each visit involved a commute of several hours. One social worker admitted that she preferred a foster parent who didn't work because that person could more easily comply with the time-consuming regulations. Sarah and her husband Michael also agonize over complying with special regulations about hiring babysitters or traveling ("anytime we left New York State we needed to ask the agency's permission, which in turn had to get the signed consent from the birth mother"). Central to Another Mother is the issue of transracial placement. Sarah remembers, "That first day the contrast between my pale skin and Cecilia's brown skin seemed glaring. Not only did I feel that I had someone else's child, I felt that I had a child from another culture. Would I owe someone an explanation?" (Gerstenzang is recalling the 1972 opposition of the National Association of Black Social Workers.) Her account is full of anecdotes and reflections about race: acceptance and prejudice from others; the feelings of her two children about having a sibling of a different race; and culture keeping, beginning with skin and hair care.

Children on the Threshold in Contemporary Latin American Cinema Jan 11 2022 This book contends that child characters have taken on a critical representational role within Latin American cinema because of their position on the threshold between “nature” and “culture,” which converts them into a focus of, and a limit to, state or colonial biopower.
